Victorian

Tradition meets elegance

This style is where tradition meets elegance, and it is perfect for either a Victorian or modern home. It is as adaptable as it is sophisticated, and remains the nation's most popular choice. There is an almost limitless number of configurations of shapes, sizes and materials available.

The curved bay-curved front gives you a panoramic view of your garden, so you can enjoy both the added indoor space and also the changing of the seasons just outside the window.

The eye-catching design can be made to work perfectly with your home, and you can specify the type of intricate cresting, finials, decorative glass and other eye-catching design features.

"Fineglaze worked with me to design the perfect Victorian conservatory for my home and now it's built, I can't imagine how we managed without it.
Mrs Harper

"We love the Edwardian design as not only does it add a certain splendour externally but the space it's created inside is incredible. We've managed to create a roomy new dining area and still have space for relaxation."

Mr & Mrs West

Edwardian

Bright and airy feel,

The light will flood into your new Edwardian conservatory thanks to its high roof style, instantly creating a bright and airy feel, along with a panoramic view of your garden. From the outside, the conservatory's bold and elegant design adds a touch of architectural grandeur to your home.

The rectangular shape creates maximum floor space, while decorative finishes such as finials, moulding and crestings allow you to add your own personal design touches. The straight sides make this the ideal conservatory to which you can add versatile and attractive bi-fold doors.

The spaciousness created allows you ultimate flexibility when it comes to using your conservatory, with plenty of room for furniture or even a new kitchen or office.

Contemporary & garden rooms

Maximum use of your available space

The great thing about modern conservatories is the incredible range of options designed to make maximum use of your available space.

The uncomplicated design and lines of our garden rooms will make the most of a limited amount of space, and their design makes them suitable for any style of home, including bungalows and houses with low eaves.

Our contemporary designs can be as creative as you wish and make use of a whole range of design options. That might mean unusual shapes, a raised lantern, an orangery or any other piece of architectural creativity that will work with your home. We can engineer so many designs in such a range of materials and styles that your imagination can run wild!

Whatever the space available and whatever your requirements, we can work together to design your perfect conservatory.

"We only had a small patio area available to add a conservatory and I didn't think it would be large enough but the garden room that Fineglaze recommended has been such a valuable addition - I can't believe the extra space we've gained and the options it gives us at home. Amazing."

Mrs Brown

Glazed extensions

Best of both worlds.

You may like the idea of a conservatory but would like a slightly different look. How about an extension with a glazed roof?

This creates a more conventional room but with the added advantage of a glazed roof allowing much more light in and creating a spacious feel.

"We love the tiled roof on our conservatory.

Mrs Price

"Fineglaze worked with me to design the perfect Glazed extension, I can't imagine how we managed without it.

Mrs Jones

We didn't even know the technology was available to do this but we're delighted with the result, which is a truly unique new living room."

Tiled roofs

Best of both worlds.

You may like the all-embracing lightness of a conservatory but prefer the roof to not be glass. With certain styles of conservatory, we can add a technically-advanced tiled roof to create a unique room that combines cosiness with an open and bright aspect. By taking care to work out the direction your house faces and the angle of the sun at various times of the day, we can even offer a half-tiled, half-glass roof to be the best of both worlds.
